Lars Redeligx

Chief Executive Officer Düsseldorf Airport

Lars Redeligx has been President of the German Aviation Association (BDL) since July 1, 2026. In January 2023, the experienced manager took over as Chief Executive Officer of Düsseldorf Airport. In this role, he is responsible for the strategic and operational development of one of Germany's largest commercial airports.

After completing an apprenticeship as an aviation professional, he studied economics at Johann Wolfgang Goethe University in Frankfurt, graduating with a degree in business administration.

He began his career with the Lufthansa Group, where he held various leadership positions from 2000 to 2012: At Lufthansa Passage Airline, he oversaw pricing and distribution and had previously been responsible for sales strategy and management. From 2013 to 2016, Redeligx served as Chief Commercial Officer of Brussels Airlines, and subsequently as Spokesperson for the Executive Board of LSG Europe until 2019. Before joining Düsseldorf Airport, he served as Chief Commercial Officer at the Lineas Group – a leading private rail logistics company in Europe – from 2020 to 2022.

His leadership philosophy is characterized by a clear focus on customer satisfaction, operational excellence, innovation, and sustainability. In this role, he draws on his many years of experience in the airline industry, airport management, and logistics. Under his leadership, Düsseldorf Airport improved its financial performance as well as its service quality and operational performance, which have since received multiple awards.

In addition to his operational responsibilities, Redeligx is actively involved in various industries and business organizations.

Lars Redeligx was born in Glückstadt in 1970, he is married and has two children.
